Introduction

Under the Adoption Agency and Foster Care Regulations, Permanence Panel members are called on to make recommendations of huge significance in children's lives. They must take part in highly sensitive and confidential discussions and attempt to make appropriate recommendations in situations of great difficulty and complexity. In doing so, they must act with care and integrity.

Recognising this, the Suffolk Adoption Agency requires its panel members to sign their agreement to the following protocol, which reflects some of the main requirements of the role and make clear the Agency's expectations of each panel member.

The protocol is also intended to clarify what panel members can expect from the Agency.

The Protocol

Expectations of panel members

1. Any information of which the panel members become aware in their capacity as a member of the Suffolk Permanence Panel regarding individual children, their natural families and prospective adoptive parents is confidential. Panel members undertake not to disclose any such information to persons who are not members of the Suffolk Permanence Panel or attending the Panel without prior confirmation from the Director for Children and Young People that any such disclosure would be permitted by the Adoption Agency Regulations 2005 and the Foster Care Regulations 2001.
2. Panel members will make suitable arrangements to ensure that all confidential written material to which they have access is received, kept and transported securely so that no unauthorised person can access it.
3. Panel members undertake to declare to the Chair of the Panel (at Panel meetings) or otherwise to the Professional Adviser (Permanence) any prior personal knowledge they have regarding individual children, their natural families and prospective adoptive parents due to be discussed by the Panel. Requests may be made for Panel Members to sit on alternative Panels, as a member of the 'central list' if required to ensure quoracy of Panel meetings.

This provides an opportunity to review the experience to date and make suggestions, which will assist the member to become more involved and effective. Panel members will be given separate written guidance concerning the annual performance review.

Exceptionally, it would also provide an opportunity for members who are unhappy with the role to withdraw or for the Chair and the Professional Adviser (Permanence) to suggest that the panel member leaves the panel. The Professional Adviser (Permanence) and Chair should always give reasons, in writing, for such a suggestion. They must then make this recommendation to the Agency. 18. If a decision is made to end the Panel Member's appointment following this review or at any other time, the Chair and Professional Adviser (Permanence) will usually only have made this recommendation to the Agency following an attempt to resolve in private any concerns about a Panel Member's conduct or behaviour. Information for prospective members of a permanence panel

Thanks very much for your query about your possible membership of one of Suffolk's permanence panels. This is a vital and valuable role for children.

What are the panels for?

Permanence panels are set up by law to make recommendations about:

- whether adoption or permanent fostering is the appropriate plan for the child;
- whether applicants are suitable as adopters and
- whether particular children should be placed with particular adopters or permanent foster carers. Also some other subsidiary issues

The panels are called permanence panels because they consider permanent fostering as well as adoption.

You can see that the panels have to make some recommendations of great importance and sensitivity, which profoundly affect the lives of children and adopters. The role of panel member requires a lot of thought and care. It is a challenging role both emotionally and mentally.

It requires a good balance of relevant experience, wisdom, sensitivity to particular children's needs and a mix of views from different standpoints.

The panels act as an independent quality check on plans suggested by social workers for children in care who they believe need to be adopted or permanently fostered. The panel has to consider the plan to check whether there are better alternatives for the child, for example, whether a parent or member of the child's wider family could be helped to look after the child. The panel gives advice on matters such as whether the child should be placed with siblings, what contact arrangements there should be with family members after the child is placed and so on. Some birth parents opt to attend the meeting to give their views as part of the panels work

The panel also has to consider recommendations that people should be approved as adopters. Prospective adopters who have undergone a period of training and assessment attend part of these items to answer any panel questions and express their views. The panel also examine proposals to place particular children with particular adopters. In this case, the panel has to consider whether the adopters skills and characteristics match what particular children need.

How the panels run

The length of a panel meeting varies between a half day and 2/3rd of the day. The panels meet in Ipswich at Endeavour House, Russell Rd.

Information for prospective members of a permanence panel

There is a substantial amount of careful reading to do before each meeting, which roughly equals the amount of time spent in panels. The panel information is very confidential and panel members` have to abide by strict confidentiality rules. Panel members receive this information a week before the panel meeting.

We currently have 3 permanence panels each of which meets 3 weekly. A list of dates is available for the year ahead to help members plan their commitments.

Memberships of the panels.

There are approximately 10 members on each panel not including additional people such as the Clerk, legal adviser and myself. Meetings have to have 5 members present to be quorate so keeping attendance at a good level is important.

The chair is an independent person, Lyndsay Davison. The members of the panel include a mix of social services, education, councilors, a medical adviser and independent members.

We try hard to include people as panel members who have direct experience of adoption in one way or another.

You might be

- an adopted person
- An adopter
- A birth parent of a child who was adopted
- Alternatively you may have experience of working in the field of adoption as a volunteer or professionally or with children in care.

What membership entails

Panel members are asked to sign a protocol which sets out what's expected of you. This includes undertaking to attend 75% of the time. Secondly, panel members need to read our Policies and feel comfortable with them to be a panel member.
