Who are Gypsies and Travellers?

The term Gypsies and Travellers covers many different groups, including Romany Gypsies, Irish Travellers, Circus, Fairground and New Travellers. Although belonging to different communities, these groups all share in common a nomadic lifestyle and often have their own distinct traditions and cultures.

Gypsies and Travellers are individuals like us and belong to a strong culture that is very different to that of the settled community.

Where do they come from?

Gypsies are from the Romany ethnic group, whose ancestors migrated here from India during the tenth century onwards, mixing with Europeans and other groups over the centuries. Gypsies have been in Britain for at least 500 years.

Irish Travellers are a nomadic group with a distinctive way of life who have been here since at least the early 19th century, thought to be linked to the 1830's potato famine.

The first recorded modern circus was established in London in 1770. The long history of circus has frequently been associated with family names stretching back over many generations e.g. Chipperfields.

The Fairground community protects its interest and way of life partly by membership of the Showman's Guild of Great Britain which dates back to the end of the nineteenth century.

Most New Travellers have grown up in mainstream society. People adopt this way of life for a variety of reasons including homelessness, unemployment, environmental reasons or choice.

How do Gypsies and Travellers affect me?

Some of the more well known areas of work that Gypsies and Travellers are involved in, include seasonal agricultural work, motor trading and tree-felling. Some are employed as academics, teachers and public servants, and in this way add to the economy. Gypsies and Travellers add to the culture and diversity of Suffolk through their storytelling, music and dance. The positive contribution of Gypsies and Travellers should be recognised.

The facts...

- Romany Gypsies and Irish Travellers are recognised as ethnic minorities and are protected by race relations legislation.
- There are 204 authorised spaces, or 'pitches' in Suffolk spread across 23 different sites that members of the Gypsy and Travelling communities use. On these pitches Gypsies and Travellers pay rent, water bills, electricity bills, and Council Tax just like any other member of the settled community.

- Of approximately 432 caravans recorded in the January 2008 Suffolk caravan count, approximately 92%, were on authorised sites.
- Gypsies and Travellers often set up sites on land without planning permission because there is a lack of publicly provided spaces for them. 90% of planning applications Gypsies and Travellers submit fail, which means they are often forced to make camp wherever possible.

- The East of England Regional Spatial Strategy has identified that by 2011 a further 156 individual pitches will be required in Suffolk.
